

Predicts Vast Expansion for Brooklyn Area

M. C. O'Brien Sees Airplane Frolics by Moonlight in Next Century

Brooklyn's status in industry in the next hundred years can be more surely forecast than can its government's cultural and social aspects...

STILWELL & VAN PELT, Merchant Tailors and Clothiers. FASHIONABLE HAT STORE. No. 84 Fulton street, Brooklyn, L. I.

Boro's Future Linked With Rail Facilities

Michael Levy, Head of Oppenheim, Collins, Sees Further Strides

In the future of the city may be measured by its present attainments. Brooklyn seems destined to occupy a preeminent position in the next few decades.

William Wise Jr. Opened First Store in 1834

Jewelry Firm Reviews 100 Years of Brooklyn - Finds Sound Growth

William Wise & Son have a peculiarly personal interest in Brooklyn's celebration of the 100th anniversary of its charter grant.

Borough Civic Pride to Grow, Asserts Zeitz

By FRED J. ZEITZ, President, Martin's

In connection with the 100th anniversary of our borough it would be interesting to unearth from our city's archives predictions of the future penned by the worthy citizens of 1834.

Directory of 1833-34 Listed Pioneers Who Aided in Brooklyn's Growth

Table listing names and addresses of pioneers from 1833-34, including: Saxon widow of Richard, 93 Tillary; Smith Jacob, carpenter Concord & Jay; Squire Thomas, shoemaker 110 Nassau; Sutton Jacob B. marketman 14 Liberty; Tompkins Miss, millinery 125 Fulton; Van Nostrand Abraham, Smith n Scher...